Voi avete un cor fedele, Mozart

Mozart composed this aria at Salzburg in October 1775.

TEXT

You have a faithful heart,
like a passionate lover,
but as my husband declared,
what will you do? will you change?
Say, then what will be?

Will you be faithful?
Ah! I believe not; already I forsee,
you could deceive me.
Not yet, not for now
I do not wish to trust in you.

Caralyn Tomlin is in her fourth year of the Bachelor of Music in Performance Course and is a student of Helen Simmie. She was in the Opera Department's production of THE CRUCIBLE this winter and has appeared as soloist with the University of Toronto Symphony Orchestra in the Nelson Mass in 1974. She has also studied at Salzburg and Santa Barbara, California. She is the recipient of several scholarships and other awards.

'Cello Concerto in E minor, Op. 85, Elgar

Completed in 1919, Elgar's 'Cello Concerto was first performed in October of the same year by the English artist, Felix Salmond with the London Symphony Orchestra at Queens Hall. The movements are linked in pairs, the first and second commencing with a 'cello recitative, and the slow movement leading into the finale. The concerto reflects Elgar's increasingly sober attitude to life due to the Great War and its horrors, which he felt so deeply. The Adagio is particularly meditative; but the entire work is deeply personal, "autumnal melancholy" pervading every bar.

Genève La Rue is a native of Montréal. She is in her fourth year of the Bachelor of Music in Performance Course and is a student of Vladimir Orloff. She was a member of the National Youth Orchestra in 1969, 1970 and 1971 and took part in music festivals in St. Moritz and Bayreuth. She has received scholarships from the Canada Council and the other organizations.

Le Sacre du Printemps, Stravinsky

The notorious first performance of this ballet was given in Paris in May 1913. Pierre Monteux conducted and the calamitous audience reaction appeared to seal its fate. However, Monteux convinced Stravinsky to arrange the work for concert and it is in this form that it has become a modern classic, a work which has had tremendous impact on much of the great music of this century. As Rollo Myers has said, "Every law of musical syntax, every canon of harmony seems to have been violated, every limit of rhythmic perversity and eccentricity of orchestration exceeded in this tumultuous cataclysm of sound: yet with all its crudity and violence, the Rite is clearly planned, perfectly controlled and co-ordinated . . . it has never had a sequel and remains unique." A Tour de Force performance piece for symphony orchestra, it is essentially a tone poem concerned with the forces of nature as seen through the eyes of primitive man. It depicts pre-historic religious ritual venerating Spring and fertility. Part I commences with an introduction suggesting awakening nature. Six episodes follow without interruption. In the Adolescent Dance there is stamping upon the ground followed by a mock abduction. A Russian round dance based on a folk song is heard. Then after a kind of community contest, the Celebrant appears. He consecrates the earth and a dance follows. Part II begins with an introduction, Pagan Night. The sacrificial victim from the tribal maidens present is chosen. Several sequences lead to a frenzied climax in which the chosen maiden dances herself to death.
